Important information

Excess contributions: You are not permitted to transfer excess contributions from an HSA, Archer MSA or IRA to a Bank of America HSA. If any portion of your transfer is or becomes an excess contribution, it is your responsibility to notify Bank of America and request a withdrawal of the excess contribution together with any net income attributable thereto.

Investments: Your HSA will be invested as provided under your HSA arrangement with Bank of America.

One-time transfer from a Roth or Traditional IRA to an HSA: Generally, only one transfer may be made during the lifetime of an individual. IRA transfers count toward and are limited to your maximum HSA contribution for the year.

General information

There are two ways to move funds from an existing HSA, Archer MSA or IRA into a new HSA:

- 1. Trustee-to-trustee transfer: In a trustee-to-trustee transfer the current custodian moves funds to the new custodian directly. There is no limit under the tax laws on the number of times this can occur.
- 2. Rollover: A rollover is a cash distribution and redeposit with another custodian within 60 days. Either the customer receives funds and re-deposits in a new account or writes a check on an old account to a new custodian. The customer is limited to using this approach once every 12 months. Bank of America provides HSA Contribution forms online at myhealth.bankofamerica.com under the "Tools & Support" tab.

Comparison of a trustee-to-trustee transfer and a rollover into a Bank of America HSA¹

	Trustee-to-trustee transfer	Rollover
Permitted frequency	Unlimited	One rollover per 12 month time period, per HSA. The rollover redeposit with Bank of America must be completed within 60 days after the day the distribution is made. Tax reporting	None required	Bank of America is required to report the contribution on Form 5498-SA.
Fees	Bank of America does not charge any fees with a trustee-to-trustee transfer of funds into the HSA.
